PREAMBLE

The transportation agencies listed on the following pages provide a variety of services to individuals with disabilities seeking reliable transportation. This document is not a list of schedules or routes but a comprehensive compilation of contact information to transportation agencies within the state. This list may not be all-inclusive. These services include reduced fares on commuter and local bus routes, as well as curb-to-curb and door-to-door transportation through Dial-A-Ride and ADA Paratransit services. The services have different names for the service depending on the location.

If you need assistance with transportation options, do not hesitate to contact a Certified Orientation and Mobility Specialist. The instructors have a wealth of information available. They would be happy to assist you. Be mindful there are few transportation options in rural areas. There may not be public transportation options in your area. In the list of towns, choose a location which is nearest to your current location. Be mindful some territories of transportation agencies cross over into other territories. Towns are listed in the INDEX alphabetically. The following websites have much of the same information which is available within this document.

KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

There are a number of things to keep in mind for those using any of the transportation services offered:

REDUCED FARES

To qualify for half fare, an elderly or disabled passenger must present a Medicare card, State-issued transit reduced-fare photo ID, or ADA ID.

EXACT CHANGE

In general public transit and dial-a-ride services require exact change.

DIAL-A-RIDE SERVICES

Operating in most communities, these offer door-to-door transportation for those who are elderly or disabled. They are useful for medical appointments or shopping trips but may not operate during typical commuting hours. Some are able to provide reliable transportation to and from work.

ADA PARATRANSIT SERVICES

ADA Paratransit services are limited to those who cannot, because of their disabilities, get to bus stops or access buses. The services operate within 1/4 to 3/4 mile from bus stops on local routes (depending on the area). Service hours are usually the same as the local bus route. To use ADA services, riders must be eligible and certified according to the Americans with Disabilities Act. Certification information and forms are available through transit district offices. To find ADA Paratransit Services, look in the town listing. If there is not a specific listing for ADA or Paratransit Services, call the local public transportation agency for your area. Many of the larger transportation agencies have their own ADA Paratransit Services. Depending on the area, call your local town or city hall. There may be ADA Paratransit Services, Dial-A-Ride, or Senior Transportation for your local area. If you live in a rural area, transportation options are limited. Some options may be to use the local transportation services (such as ADA, taxis, friends, family, etc.) to get to an area where the larger districts may be able to pick you up with their ADA transportation. Scheduling issues may be a problem since many of the ADA transportation requires you to call ahead of time for you to schedule an appointment. Remember to schedule an appointment for the return trip. You may be allowed only a certain amount of items to carry with you, such as a limit to only three bags of groceries. There may be other transportation options available in your area.

ADA FARES

ADA Paratransit services may charge up to double the regular adult cash fare on local buses.

RESERVATIONS

Most dial-a-ride and Paratransit services allow reservations in advance from 24 hours to 14 days (such as in Danbury).

Commuters can usually make a daily reservation for two weeks at a time.

CANCELLATIONS

Services require several hours' notice for cancellations, some as much as 24 hours. They also may have time limits on how long drivers can wait to pick up a passenger.

SUSPENSIONS

Many services suspend habitual "no-shows" – those who do not cancel pickups appropriately and are not available when the van arrives.

ACCESSIBLE VEHICLES

Since 1996, some local buses will be lift-equipped in accordance with the ADA. In addition, many already have kneeling features to assist those who have difficulty climbing stairs. Call ahead for verification whether the vehicle you will be using will be lift-equipped.

CALLING AHEAD

No matter what service you need, it's a good idea to check with a transportation agency of interest to verify services, schedules, and fares. Transportation agencies are listed by area. Check the heading for your area below to see if public transportation is offered in your community.

- COMMUTER AND EXPRESS BUS SERVICES

These usually operate during morning and late afternoon hours and travel on fixed schedules to and from major work centers.

- LOCAL BUS OR VAN SERVICE

Local services provide community or intercommunity transportation on fixed routes and schedules.

- DISABLED COMMUTER SERVICES

These include ADA Paratransit services and those dial-a-ride services which are able to meet the schedule needs of commuters traveling to and from work. Some transportation may be medical only. Call the company for verification.

SELF-ADVOCACY

When accessing public transportation, notify the bus driver of your needs and let your circumstances be known. For more detailed training or suggestions on how to ride a bus, contact your local Orientation and Mobility Specialist. Dog guides are legally allowed to accompany an individual with a visual impairment in any public area.

Directory Assistance

The 411 information directory is provided free of charge to individuals with visual impairments. The 411 directory can be called to access any information which is provided in printed telephone books. This number can be accessed in any state within the contiguous United States, Hawaii, and Alaska. By dialing 4-1-1, you can access contact information about transportation services.

The operator or voice prompt will guide or assist you once the number has been dialed. Ask for public and private transportation services in your geographic area when you contact the 411 service. You will receive a list of taxi or limousine services as well as any transportation agencies in your area. The selections may be limited in rural areas.

The Infoline website (<http://www.infoline.org>) on the Internet can provide much of the same information as the 411 phone number. Having access to Infoline on the Internet could assist you in being able to make a copy of information you can take with you should you be away from home.

Locating a Driver

If a person cannot find public or private transportation with the information directories available, a number of organizations could be contacted for possible assistance. These organizations may have drivers available either for appointments such as medical appointments, or on a non-continual basis. Some organizations may have additional funding to provide services for other than medical appointments and on a more consistent basis. These organization may provide the services free-of-charge or for a minimal fee. Examples of organizations that may offer drivers at no cost or minimal cost are town senior centers, religious organizations and groups, civic organizations such as the local Lions or Rotary Club, as well as social service organizations. Contact the organization to verify how the services are provided and ask about costs before finalizing your arrangements.

Placing an advertisement in a local newspaper is another method for finding potential drivers. However, if you are seeking a driver using the advertisement approach, it is highly recommended that you ask for references and that you contact these references before making a decision to utilize the driver. You will want to ask about driving safety history, and ask the references about the person's reliability. Often, drivers who respond to advertisements will be seeking payment, so this is also important to inquire about. While there are many dedicated and reliable individuals who may respond to an advertisement, caution does need to be exercised to be sure the driver that you select will be a good match for your particular needs.

BESB's volunteer coordinator is also available to assist with matching agency consumers with drivers. It is always a good practice to check with the agency to find out if a driver in your area is available to meet some of your transportation needs. Call (860) 602-4129 or (800) 842-4510, extension 4129 for more information.
